Pope Lifts Barrier

VATICAN CITY AP — Pope Paul VI today lifted the excommunication of Roman Catholics married outside their church and abolished the mixed marriage pledge by non-Catholics to raise children in the church.

These were among historic changes ordered in a long-awaited papal document on mixed marriages of Roman Catholics and persons of other beliefs. The changes, vastly significant for Christian unity efforts:

Lift the penalty of excommunication for Catholics who marry before a non-Catholic minister, both in the future and retroactively for couples already married.

Wipe out the requirement that a non-Catholic make written promises to have children baptized and educated as Catholics, put the responsibility on the Catholic spouse instead and invite the non-Catholic to promise to respect the Catholic partner's duty.

The 1,500-word Latin document retained the Roman Catholic Church's position that marriage between Catholics, or between a Catholic and a non-Catholic is valid only if performed before a Catholic priest.

The document, entitled "matrimonio sacramentum" — the sacrament of matrimony — came just four days before Anglican Archbishop Michael Ramsey of Canterbury, the spiritual head of the Church of England, makes a historic official visit to Pope Paul.

One important change allows a non-Catholic minister to take part in the wedding of a Catholic and a non-Catholic before a Roman Catholic priest. The minister will be able to give the couple his blessing after they have exchanged their marriage vows.

Common prayer also will be allowed at the ceremony, with the priest, the minister and the newlyweds praying together.

Indonesia Acts to Curb Reds

SINGAPORE AP — Bowing to army leaders, President Sukarno of Indonesia allowed First Deputy Premier Subandrio and 14 other pro-Communist Cabinet ministers to be taken into military custody today.

Lt. Gen. Suharto, the army strongman, then announced over Radio Jakarta the temporary appointment of new Cabinet ministers to replace them.

Informed sources in Singapore said Subandrio, object of anti-Communist student demonstrations the past few weeks, had not been dismissed from his Cabinet posts but that this is only a question of time.

Radio Jakarta had reported earlier that acting on Sukarno's orders the armed forces had taken Subandrio, 14 other pro-Communist ministers into "protective custody" to prevent the Indonesian people, who were becoming restless and uncontrollable."

Diplomatic observers in Singapore said Sukarno, 64, who had stubbornly resisted the mounting opposition to Subandrio and other pro-Communists in the Cabinet, had lost the last round of his battle for power with the anti-Communist military leaders.

"Sukarno is finished," one observer said.

CHICAGO (AP) — Until recently, the U.S. foreign aid program included give-aways of wiretap and eavesdropping equipment, Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., said today.

This practice was stopped, Long said, when he informed the administrator of the Agency for International Development.

"The very able administrator of AID did not know about this," Long said in a recent speech to the Executive Club of Chicago.

"Nor did he know that his personnel trained the foreign recipients of the wiretap and eavesdropping equipment."

Long is chairman of a Senate subcommittee that held hearings into wiretapping practices.

"In San Francisco," he said, "we saw not only federal snappers but also industrial snappers. My subcommittee has been deeply concerned about the extent to which industries are using illegal methods to spy on each other. I am convinced that industrial snooping is even more extensive than wiretapping and eavesdropping by federal agents."

Long said U.S. and allied military authorities should give up their right to wiretap in West Germany.

CHARLESTON (AP) — Feverish debate is underway concerning Charleston high school building bonds held invalid March 2 by bond attorneys.

This ruling came about a year after a $1,400,000 bond election was held for a new high school building, March 2, 1965. It was approved 1,985 to 501.

After the ruling the Charleston R-1 school board of education voted unanimously to hold a special bond election March 29.

If the vote fails March 29, another election could be held within 15 days.

A special board meeting will be held Saturday and Fred Moxley, Jr., a board member, said the board would decide then whether to hold the bond election March 29, at the time of the general school election April 5, or at a later date.

The board has been involved in controversy and has asked Sup't of Schools W. R. "Bud" Pierce to resign at the end of the school year.

Moxley held an informational meeting yesterday at his house and described the board's affairs.

"We are in a bind," he said.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Friday, March 18, 806, Squeets, Libya: The eruption of the Crumman Mudball.

There is an air of inflation circulating throughout the land.

Price increases are being announced on a broad front.

Individually they may not be significant. Collectively they are.

Corporation profits have been high, some of them at record levels for recent times. Labor union chieftains have served notice that they are going to ignore the guidelines of the administration of President Lyndon B. Johnson and that in addition to a normal wage increase they will demand that a "make-up" payment be made to balance off the higher company earnings.

It's the old story. Everyone expects the other fellow to tighten his belt but no one wants to do it himself.

The Johnson administration has followed a policy of caution in applying any controls and has refrained from announcing a tax increase.

The stock market has been betting that the Johnson approach will not work. There are prospects of tight money, a profit squeeze and either lightly controlled or rampant inflation.

So prices of stocks have gone into a deep decline. The jitters may not be completely warranted.

But we are inclined to agree that the Johnson administration can't for long have its cake and eat it, too.

The cake, of course, calls for continued prosperity at a high level, and economic growth, full support for the war in Viet Nam, expansion of the Great Society domestic program, which calls for heavy expenditure of federal funds on both new and existing projects, without a tax increase or imposition of controls on prices and wages.

It isn't going to work--at least not for long.

When it doesn't work the Johnson administration is going to be in trouble politically. Since Johnson is a skilled professional politician, he cannot be expected to take this turn of events quietly. He will act then, of course, but he may be too late to prevent all the damage to the American people and to his own personal political fortunes.

The battle should be a lively and interesting one but it won't be pleasant for everyone. Some people are bound to get hurt seriously and many will be pinched painfully.

The Colonel said: "Good judgment comes from experience and experience comes from using bad judgment."

ENOUGH MULBERRY DOLLARS!

The lessons of history show that the natural trend of events is for governments to ensalve their citizens.

Governments, whose only legitimate role is to protect their citizens, eventually attempt to "improve the public welfare" by engaging in various kinds of public works. Of course, this takes money, so taxes have to be increased.

But historians tell us people usually start balking when taxes approach 25% of their income, so the natural trend is for government leaders to find secret ways of acquiring additional money to spend. This can be done very easily by inflating the money supply and by levying hidden excise taxes. Thus fooled, citizens tend to go along with ever-expanding government programs.

Early kings clipped gold and silver coins or secretly melted and mixed them with baser metals. And when their subjects became aware of what was happening, the kings would order them to accept the debased coins at face value. Marco Polo, in his book about his travels during the 13th century, tells how the Chinese Kublai Khan confiscated all gold and jewels for his treasury and forced his subjects to use paper money made from the inside bark of mulberry trees. Citizens were prohibited by law from counterfeiting the Khan's money. The Khan eventually issued so many "mulberry" dollars that people would no longer accept them and they became worthless.

We have the same situation in our country today. Our federal government has been engaging in various spending programs for years and years. But our politicians have not been courageous enough to levy enough taxes to pay the bill. Indeed, if government leaders were honest enough to admit that no government can give to citizens any more than it takes from citizens, the people would choose to spend their own money as they wish. Instead, our government has stooped to hidden taxes and to inflating the supply of money through our banking system by issuing IOU's (i.e., bonds).

When all this extra money starts circulating, people bid up prices and wages in an attempt to get the goods and services they want and need. As wages and prices begin to rise faster and faster, the government issues "voluntary guidelines" in a futile attempt to hold them down. And, as the "guidelines" fail -- for, indeed, fail they will -- the "guidelines" are replaced with legal price and wage controls.

Of course, in order to maintain public support, government officials point the finger of blame at "naughty" businessmen who raise prices and at "uncooperative" union managers who demand higher wages. In short, the real culprit evades the blame it so justly deserves while imposing controls on innocent parties who

If the American public were alert, it would by now be alarmed at the dangerous trend we are in. Price and wage controls -- "voluntary" or legal--are the badges of totalitarian governments. Such controls have never been successful in the past, except to enslave people. And they won't be needed in the future if our government will stop inflating our money supply by spending more money than it receives in taxes. Concerned citizens must voice their opinions on this critical issue before we lose more economic freedom than we have lost already.

Motorists are under less tension when driving on interstate highways and freeway systems. The tension they feel is half of the tension felt when driving on limited access highways, and a third of that felt when driving on city streets, according to studies conducted by the Highway Research Board.

The launching of Gemini 8 came roughly at the halfway mark of this country's timetable for a manned landing on the moon.

President John F. Kennedy told Congress five years ago that "no single space project (in the 1960s) will be more impressive to mankind or more important for the long range exploration of space" than getting to the moon. But he added that "none will be so difficult or expensive to accomplish".

At that time estimates of the cost of sending a manned spaceship on a round trip to the moon by 1970 ranged from $20 billion to $40 billion.

Neil A. Armstrong and Maj. David R. Scott, the Gemini-8 pilots, remained in orbit until their space vehicle developed trouble. Their primary mission was to link their craft to an orbiting Agena rocket. This maneuver, called docking, was crucial to the success of the moon trip. It was accomplished.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has chosen the quickest and cheapest, but also most difficult way to the moon and back. Launched by a Saturn C-5, the moonship would go into earth orbit, head for the moon, maneuver into lunar orbit, and drop a landing vehicle containing two astronauts to the lunar surface. The third astronaut would remain aboard the orbiting mother ship.

After a day or so of exploration, the astronauts on the moon would reenter the landing vehicle, shoot into orbit, couple with the mother ship and crawl back inside. After jettisoning the landing vehicle, the mother ship would head back to earth.

Radiation hazards may force postponement of the lunar adventure. The period from now until 1970 is expected to be one of intense solar-flare activity. So as American scientists continue the race to the moon, they will have to keep an eye on the sun.

This is only one obstacle in successfully keeping the 1970 date to land an American on the moon but the adventure doesn't now seem nearly as fantastic or difficult as it did when President Kennedy spoke about it five years ago.

The reason it doesn't is because of the tremendous progress that has been made since, even though problems remain to be overcome. This has been most gratifying.

AMERICA'S JUNIOR MISS PAGEANT begins. Through 20th. Yuma, Arizona.

WHERE WERE THE PICKETS?

Any time during the past month would have been an ideal time for a demonstration by the Viet Nam war protesters -- a demonstration not against the United States but against the Hanoi regime.

It was that long and more since this country first halted bombing raids over North Viet Nam. For four days during the Vietnamese new year's celebrations our troops maintained a strictly defensive posture, although the Viet Cong's universal cease-fire did not include Americans.

In the meantime, presidential peace emissaries continued to scurry between Washington and a dozen world capitals seeking the diplomatic formula that could lead to an armistice.

Why did we not see a march on Washington, or at least a few pickets outside the White House to dramatize support for these efforts of the government? Why no mass meetings putting a bit of pressure on the North Vietnamese who, as they themselves said, have been heartened by the activities of peace-loving American students?

Why indeed?

The silence of the past weeks has done more than the noisiest demonstration to expose the double standard of the Vietnamese and to prove the shallowness, naivete and essential futility of their cause.

This is not to charge them with the blame for the failure of the peace offensive. They are not that important, and in any event a demonstration in support of the government at this stage would probably have counted for little in the international balance.

It would, however, have been a welcome gesture of moderation and conciliation at home and have gone far toward reversing the trend that seems to be driving Americans into two extreme camps.

But -- elephants don't play tennis because there ain't no round tennis shoes.

The fellow peeled off his coat, hung it up, and climbed into barber chair number one.

"Good morning," said the barber, "what'll it be?"

Two of the ghostwriters were Edward Lockett, to whom was paid $8,000 out of the "Testimony" for U. S. Senator J. Dodd account, and Jay Sourwine, to whom Dodd paid $2,500.

The latter transaction is especially interesting because one of Sourwine's checks, for $2,500, bounced.

Eyeball to Eyeball, but not Eye to Eye on Wage Boosts

—ROSS LEWIS, MILWAUKEE JOURNAL

EYE INJURIES

One-third of the more than 300,000 eye injuries in this country each year are sustained by children in unsupervised play, the Greater New York Safety Council reported.

The bulletin points out playtime dangers ranging from aiming of the increasingly popular missile-type toys to such traditional winter horseplay as face-washing in the snow. It points out also the dangers of getting on the hands certain chemicals which may then be rubbed in the eyes.

"A chemical irritant should be washed out immediately with cupsful of clear tap water," it advises. Cautioning against rubbing the eyes, it advises calling the doctor for any such injury.

The advice directed to teenage home helpers, gardeners, and workshop hobbyists is equally applicable to their elders. In one instance, the bulletin says: "Mom and Sis should be especially careful in pulling a garment over the head--pins, trims and jewelry can scratch the eyes."

THE REMEDY

As just about all the authorities who follow such matters agree, the federal effort to set the prices charged by natural gas producers -- which was made obligatory 10 years ago by a Supreme Court decision -- has been a flat, even chaotic, failure.

This isn't because the Federal Power Commission, which was given the regulatory job, is unskilled in regulation or lacks the will. It is because there are thousands of producers, each with his own particular economic problem; and the stock market, which makes that ownership a practical possibility for the millions, are typical and vital parts of the system we call free enterprise. They offer anyone who is interested a chance to become, in effect, a partner in the enterprises which account for much of our employment and produce goods and services wanted and used by almost all of us. The end result is the gradual creation of a nation of capitalists -- which means a nation dedicated to the preservation of free institutions.

It is argued that regulation is necessary to protect gas consumers. That just doesn't hold water. For natural gas service to these consumers does fall into the utility classification and is publicly regulated. The gas utilities, like all other utilities, are allowed to charge rates that represent costs plus a modest profit.

Furthermore, the dismal effort to regular producer prices at the well head, is more likely to work for the direct disadvantage of consumers by resulting in scarcities and, ultimately, higher prices.

The title "constitutional" is impractical because it connotes about 20% of the electorate who, when asked, proudly answer they are "independents." They are unwilling to adhere to either of the major political parties. The two-party system is vital to the nation and control by good citizens of one or the other of the parties must save liberty, if all.

"Right," with the persons inclined to the right-of-center philosophy called "rightists," has been spoken of so disparagingly that "right" labor under a handicap at home and abroad, "constructive" has none of these disadvantages.

White House Showdown Looms With Labor Chief Who Won a $54-Per-Man-Per-Week Raise For Members.

Washington, D.C.: For several weeks some erudite Presidential advisers, in the true fashion of their erstwhile, cloistered university halls, had invited a belligerent, high-bitten shoe shiner era labor leader for a dialogue.

The would-be hosts were the members of the President's Council of Economic Advisors. Three times they had asked the union chief, truly truculent Peter Weber, president and business manager of Operating Engineers Local 825, to come in and discuss a new wage contract his union had signed. The Advisers thought it rather high.

"I told him at that time that it was pretty expensive, and he said that he owed some money and was getting pressed to pay it. This is why he would like to earn some extra money."

"Some days later he called me again and asked if I would endorse a

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Friday, March 18, 806, Squeets, Libya: The eruption of the Crummian Mudball.

There is an air of inflation circulating throughout the land.

Price increases are being announced on a broad front.

Individually they may not be significant. Collectively they are.

Corporation profits have been high, some of them at record levels for recent times. Labor union chieftains have served notice that they are going to ignore the guidelines of the administration of President Lyndon B. Johnson and that in addition to a normal wage increase they will demand that a "make-up" payment be made to balance off the higher company earnings.

It's the old story. Everyone expects the other fellow to tighten his belt but no one wants to do it himself.

The Johnson administration has followed a policy of caution in applying any controls and has refrained from announcing a tax increase.

The stock market has been betting that the Johnson approach will not work. There are prospects of tight money, a profit squeeze and either lightly controlled or rampant inflation.

So prices of stocks have gone into a deep decline. The jitters may not be completely warranted.

But we are inclined to agree that the Johnson administration can't for long have its cake and eat it, too.

The cake, of course, calls for continued prosperity at a high level, and economic growth, full support for the war in Viet Nam, expansion of the Great Society domestic program, which calls for heavy expenditure of federal funds on both new and existing projects, without a tax increase or imposition of controls on prices and wages.

It isn't going to work--at least not for long.

When it doesn't work the Johnson administration is going to be in trouble politically. Since Johnson is a skilled professional politician, he cannot be expected to take this turn of events quietly. He will act then, of course, but he may be too late to prevent all the damage to the American people and to his own personal political fortunes.

The battle should be a lively and interesting one but it won't be pleasant for everyone. Some people are bound to get hurt seriously and many will be pinched painfully.

The Colonel said: "Good judgment comes from experience and experience comes from using bad judgment."

ENOUGH MULBERRY DOLLARS!

The lessons of history show that the natural trend of events is for governments to ensnare their citizens.

Governments, whose only legitimate role is to protect their citizens, eventually attempt to "improve the public welfare" by engaging in various kinds of public works. Of course, this takes money, so taxes have to be increased.

But historians tell us people usually start balking when taxes approach 25% of their income, so the natural trend is for government leaders to find secret ways of acquiring additional money to spend. This can be done very easily by inflating the money supply and by levying hidden excise taxes. Thus fooled, citizens tend to go along with ever-expanding government programs.

Early kings clipped gold and silver coins or secretly melted and mixed them with baser metals. And when their subjects became aware of what was happening, the kings would order them to accept the debased coins at face value. Marco Polo, in his book about his travels during the 13th century, tells how the Chinese Kublai Khan confiscated all gold and jewels for his treasury and forced his subjects to use paper money made from the inside bark of mulberry trees. Citizens were prohibited by law from counterfeiting the Khan's money. The Khan eventually issued so many "mulberry" dollars that people would no longer accept them and they became worthless.

We have the same situation in our country today. Our federal government has been engaging in various spending programs for years and years. But our politicians have not been courageous enough to levy enough taxes to pay the bill. Indeed, if government leaders were honest enough to admit that no government can give to citizens any more than it takes from citizens, the people would choose to spend their own money as they wish. Instead, our government has stooped to hidden taxes and to inflating the supply of money through our banking system by issuing IOU's (i.e., bonds).

When all this extra money starts circulating, people bid up prices and wages in an attempt to get the goods and services they want and need. As wages and prices begin to rise faster and faster, the government issues "voluntary guidelines" in a futile attempt to hold them down. And, as the "guidelines" fail -- for, indeed, fail they will -- the "guidelines" are replaced with legal price and wage controls.

Of course, in order to maintain public support, government officials point the finger of blame at "naughty" businessmen who raise prices and at "uncooperative" union managers who demand higher wages. In short, the real culprit evades the blame it so justly deserves while imposing controls on innocent parties who

If the American public were alert, it would by now be alarmed at the dangerous trend we are in. Price and wage controls -- "voluntary" or legal--are the badges of totalitarian governments. Such controls have never been successful in the past, except to enslave people. And they won't be needed in the future if our government will stop inflating our money supply by spending more money than it receives in taxes. Concerned citizens must voice their opinions on this critical issue before we lose more economic freedom than we have lost already.

Motorists are under less tension when driving on interstate highways and freeway systems. The tension they feel is half of the tension felt when driving on limited access highways, and a third of that felt when driving on city streets, according to studies conducted by the Highway Research Board.

The launching of Gemini 8 came roughly at the halfway mark of this country's timetable for a manned landing on the moon.

President John F. Kennedy told Congress five years ago that "no single space project (in the 1960s) will be more impressive to mankind or more important for the long range exploration of space" than getting to the moon. But he added that "none will be so difficult or expensive to accomplish".

At that time estimates of the cost of sending a manned spaceship on a round trip to the moon by 1970 ranged from $20 billion to $40 billion.

Neil A. Armstrong and Maj. David R. Scott, the Gemini-8 pilots, remained in orbit until their space vehicle developed trouble. Their primary mission was to link their craft to an orbiting Agena rocket. This maneuver, called docking, was crucial to the success of the moon trip. It was accomplished.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has chosen the quickest and cheapest, but also most difficult way to the moon and back.

Launched by a Saturn C-5, the moonship would go into earth orbit, head for the moon, maneuver into lunar orbit, and drop a landing vehicle containing two astronauts to the lunar surface.

The third astronaut would remain aboard the orbiting mother ship.

After a day or so of exploration, the astronauts on the moon would reenter the landing vehicle, shoot into orbit, couple with the mother ship and crawl back inside. After jettisoning the landing vehicle, the mother ship would head back to earth.

Radiation hazards may force postponement of the lunar adventure. The period from now until 1970 is expected to be one of intense solar-flare activity. So as American scientists continue the race to the moon, they will have to keep an eye on the sun.

This is only one obstacle in successfully keeping the 1970 date to land an American on the moon but the adventure doesn't now seem nearly as fantastic or difficult as it did when President Kennedy spoke about it five years ago.

The reason it doesn't is because of the tremendous progress that has been made since, even though problems remain to be overcome.

This has been most gratifying.

The Modern Christian

"It seems that today's teenager has little respect for adults or private property."

The other day some teenagers did thousands of dollars of damage to private property in St. Louis. Why? They lost a basketball game. Somehow, somewhere, someone had failed. It is always difficult to discern to whom the blame shall fall on -- home, school, church? Perhaps, it is the teenager who failed?

Is there any reason though, to believe that this group represents the majority of teenagers? I don't think so. Today we read of teenagers who stab their mothers and mow down their fathers with shot guns. Often because they were unable to get the family chariot for an evening date. Every generation will have a certain element that wears Nancy's boots and tamps everyone underfoot.

Actually, the teenager of today is probably the most gifted of any generation. They accept challenges and excel in areas that we never dreamed of. There are thousands working in varied service programs for the underprivileged, and not just a few dying on the jungle terrain of Viet Nam. They can walk with their head erect. The good deeds far outweigh their few mistakes.

The odds are heavy against them. In our wall-to-wall comfort many an adult hasn't an inch of space for Christ. He is out of style, out of date, out of so many adult minds. If respect for people and property is diminishing, it is not a teenage problem but an adult one.

Rev. James Hackney Speaks to Men

An Evangelist rally of the Black River Baptist Association was held Friday at the First Baptist Church in Kennett. Approximately 205 men attended and enjoyed the catfish dinner.

This was another of the many rallies over the state for preparation for the Australia-Missouri Crusade. About 30 or 40 Australians will be in the Southeast Missouri area March 20 through 27.

The Rev. James Hackney, pastor of the First Baptist church, was the speaker. His message was "Good News to All Is That Jesus Came." He also spoke of the crusade.

Ken Hull also reviewed the work of the churches that were planning spring revivals. The meeting was adjourned with prayer by Jim Ford.

The Modern Christian

"It seems that today's teenager has little respect for adults or private property."

The other day some teenagers did thousands of dollars of damage to private property in St. Louis. Why? They lost a basketball game. Somehow, somewhere, someone had failed. It is always difficult to discern to whom the blame shall fall on -- home, school, church? Perhaps, it is the teenager who failed?

Is there any reason though, to believe that this group represents the majority of teenagers? I don't think so. Today we read of teenagers who stab their mothers and mow down their fathers with shot guns. Often because they were unable to get the family chariot for an evening date. Every generation will have certain element that wears Nancy's boots and trumps everyone underfoot.

Actually, the teenager of today is probably the most gifted of any generation. They accept challenges and excel in areas that we never dreamed of. There are thousands working in varied service programs for the underprivileged, and not just a few dying on the jungle terrain of Viet Nam. They can walk with their head erect. The good deeds far outweigh their few mistakes.

The odds are heavy against them. In our wall-to-wall comfort many an adult hasn't an inch of space for Christ. He is out of style, out of date, out of so many adult minds. If respect for people and property is diminishing, it is not a teenage problem but an adult one.

ATLANTA BRAVES WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.

AP -- "Our pitching, to put it mildly," says Manager Bobby Bragan of the Atlanta Braves, "has been superb this spring."

Bragan made the comment after two of his regular pitching starters, Denny Lemaster and Ken Johnson, blanked the Chicago White Sox 2-0 on one hit Thursday.

The shutout was the second of the exhibition season for the Braves, who blanked only four rivals in the entire 1965 season. Lemaster plagued by a sore arm a year ago after winning 17 games in 1964, gave up the only Chicago hit, a slow roller to the mound by Ken Berry.

Baseball Begins Defense Today

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Baseball begins its defense today against the charge that it violated Wisconsin's antitrust laws by moving the Braves from Milwaukee to Atlanta without giving the city another team.

The state rested its case Thursday in the historic legal struggle before Circuit Judge Elmer W. Roller.

The landmark trial is the first challenge to baseball's alleged monopolistic structure and its traditional immunity from antitrust laws in nearly half a century. The unique state contention is expected eventually to go all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Install lights in Wrigley Field, schedule night games there, and reimburse stockholders for losses incurred by previous efforts to implement these two items.

Shlensky contended that the failure to install lights in Wrigley Field had caused loss of revenue through decrease in attendance with resultant loss of gate and concession receipts. Consequently, he contended, there is a reluctance to spend money for player development and procurement, resulting in poor teams and further revenue loss.

He said the stock is worth about $30 to $350 a share since Elmer Durocher was named manager. Last year it was worth only $250.

He said there are about 10,000 shares in all and that he understood Wrigley controlled 8,000 of them. The other 2,000 are divided among 300 shareholders.

From Long Beach, Calif., Wrigley told the Chicago Tribune that "It seems that anyone has a right to sue on anything these days, but we still have no plans for night baseball in Wrigley Field."

into a double play.

Three Atlanta hurlers put together the best pitched game of the day, combining for a one-hit, 2-0 shutout over the Chicago White Sox. Ken Berry got the only hit, a third-inning single off Denny Lemaster. Ken Johnson and Joe Cisterna held the Sox hitless through the last five innings.

Denny McLain and Bill Monbouquette teamed up for a three-hitter in Detroit's 1-0 triumph over Cincinnati. Jim Northrup tripled in the sixth and scored on Don Demeter's single.

The players' attorney, William Hayes, said there are no escape clauses in the contracts, which means they will miss the start of the season April 12.

Drysdale will play a television commentator, and Koufax a detective. They are three-week holdouts who originally sought three-year contracts calling for $500,000 each. They said Wednesday they had made alternate proposals but declined to reveal details.

Hayes, meanwhile, said the hurlers, who won 49 games between them last year, have been offered a 10-week tour of Japan starting in mid-June. It would pay in six figures plus a percentage of the gate at exhibitions and clinics.

The Dodgers Thursday broke a 19-inning scoreless string but still lost their fifth straight, a 4-3 decision to St. Louis.

Jim Lefebvre's three-run homer in the ninth inning snapped the string, but reliever Dennis Aust ended the game by getting pinch hitter Tommy Davis to hit

BY BILL MANN
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Champion Cassius Clay was certain today of a March 29 heavyweight title fight with George Chuvalo.

And he was almost as sure he will be wearing Army green instead of boxing trunks shortly thereafter.

Selective Service Local Board 47 removed the last barrier to the fight Thursday when it gave the champion permission to leave the United States.

The fight is scheduled at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens, and Clay classified 1-A, the top priority for induction into the Armed Services, had to have his local board's permission to leave the country. The permit expires April 17.

But the board, after hearing 35 minutes of testimony from Clay, reaffirmed its Feb. 17 action, when it reclassified Clay from 1-Y, draft exempt, to 1-A.

J. Allen Sherman, chairman of the board, said Clay, or Muhammad Ali, as he prefers to be called, claimed his Black Muslim religion should be grounds for deferment as a conscientious objector.

The only avenue left open for Clay to be deferred is a formal, written appeal. Sherman said the champion will have 10 days from notification of the board's action to appeal.

The Fabulous Magicians wrap up a big entertainment package in one admission tag (prices) because every man on the Margies Haynes-owned group of roundball stylists is without a peer in the game.

They'll make appearances this season in New York's Madison Square Garden, Boston Garden, and in such major cities as Baltimore, Washington, D. C., Houston, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Dallas, Chicago, St. Louis, Syracuse, and Tulsa.

In piling up a record of over 2500 victories against only 9 setbacks in 12 seasons, the Magicians have played to several million patrons of the court game in 47 states and 4 nations.

WOMEN'S BOWLING

BUFFALO, N.Y. AP — Mrs. Helen Greene of Buffalo rolled a three-game series of 742 Thursday in women's bowling competition at Roc-Mar Lanes here.

According to the achievement listings in the latest of the National Bowlers Journal, One woman has bowled better than 742 this season in the United States in official matches. The Journal credits Irene Monterosso of New Jersey with a 744 Series.

Not a Tree
The banana plant grows from 10 to 25 feet tall and looks much like a tree, but it is not a tree since it has no woody trunk or boughs.

As One eastern sports editor wrote one season of the Magicians' performance: "If you can't be entertained thoroughly by the brand of basketball this club can play and the type of clean comedy it produces through most of a contest, you don't need to go to a show. You should go to your doctor."

Sikhs Cause Trouble

NEW DELHI, India AP -- They are India's best farmers, best soldiers, best mechanics and, to Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's woe, among its best political agitators.

These are the Sikhs, 10.5 million stick-together followers of a vigorous 500-year-old religion and philosophy that wins them a larger spot in India's political sun than their numbers would warrant.

The Sikhs are a proud people who give the impression they stand a little taller and straighter than anyone else.

Sikh men are distinctive with their turbans, full beards and their lust for a robust, sportsman's life. The women wear leggings topped by a knee-length skirt and blouse.

Like her father, Jawaharlal Nehru, and her predecessor, Lal Bahadur Shastri, Mrs. Gandhi is finding her rule of India enormously complicated by Sikh political demands.

The Sikhs fear their relatively small community will be swamped by India's 470 million other citizens and the nation's many religions and cultures. They want their distinctive identity legally recognized.

As a first step, the Sikhs want a Punjabi-speaking state in northwest India composed of the Punjab, where most Sikhs live, and parts of neighboring Rajasthan, Himachal Pradesh and Kashmir states.

India's most powerful political group recommended last week that the government form a new state, based on language lines, to satisfy the Sikhs' demands.

The Working Committee of the governing Congress party asked the government to create a new state "out of the existing state of the Punjab" with Punjabi as the official language. The recommendation is almost certain to be accepted.

Up to now New Delhi has always resisted the plan, seeing it as a prelude to a demand for autonomy or even independence.

Mrs. Gandhi, like Nehru and Shastri, has feared that to give in to the Sikhs would unleash a score of separatist movements among other minority groups that form the Indian union.

Once his demand for a Punjabi speaking state was met, Faujeh Singh, the strongest Sikh leader, cooperated with Mrs. Gandhi's government in trying to keep tempers in check.

However, trouble erupted when the right-wing Hindu group Jan Sangh, which demands that Hindi be India's national language, violently protested the partition of Punjab. Riots broke out in the state and briefly in New Delhi.

Looters and arsonists clashed with police in many Punjabi cities, revealing a coordinated plan of attack on the government's authority.

Although Faujeh Singh kept his warrior-like people in check for the most part, some direct Hindu-Sikh clashes occurred. Many Jan Sangh leaders were arrested, and police also picked up Tara Singh, the Punjab's second-ranking Sikh leader and Faujeh Singh's rival in Sikh politics.

Tara Singh, it was charged, permitted his followers to demonstrate against the partition plan. This Sikh faction declared the plan did not go far enough and that nothing but "Self-determination" would satisfy the Sikhs.

Things run pretty much the way the Sikhs want, and religious discipline holds the community together. Sikh leaders can, and do, turn out thousands of their followers for a smartly dressed parade -- whenever a demonstration of their strength and unity is deemed necessary.

"You will never see a Sikh beggling," Singh once said. "And we are not begging now." In dealings with the New Delhi government, he tends to speak of Sikhs "demands" -- not "requests."

16 Missouri Schools Must Show Desegregation Results

JEFFERSON CITY -- Kenneth Kirchner, assistant commissioner of the Missouri Department of Education, confirmed a recent report of the U. S. Department of Education that 16 Missouri school districts will have to show results in their desegregation plans to continue to receive federal aid under new regulations.

Last week, according to Commissioner Kirchner, the U. S. Office of Education sent to all school districts in the nation a copy of its revised statement of policy under the 1966 Title Six Guide Lines.

The office of Education in Washington is definitely tightening up on the original guide lines in this revised policy and schools not already fully integrated have to be following a federally-approved plan for desegregating if they are to qualify for federal money.

This notice from Washington to the school districts calls for each district to submit another statement of assurance that it will follow the guide lines and also submit a report which shows progress already made in the desegregation of the schools and further plans for integration.

The 16 Missouri school districts which were reported as segregating some students according to race and which filed integration plans last spring to qualify for federal aid, are all located in Southeast Missouri, except for two which are north of the Missouri River.

One of the districts is Rives 2-C in Dunklin County. In New Madrid County are Parma R-3, Portageville R-1 and New Madrid R-6. Pemiscot County is cited for the following districts: Deering C-6, Wardell R-6, Hayes R-2, McCarty R-3 at Caruthersville, Cooter R-4, South Pemiscot R-1 at Wardell.

The two schools in North Missouri are Fayette R-3 in How-

Teenager To Cover Viet Nam

NEW YORK (AP) — Something really new is about to be added to the corps of newsmen covering Vietnam: A teen-age war correspondent for a group of radio stations.

He is Bart McClelland, 19, of Dallas, Tex., who will be winding up six months of service in the Marine Corps as a PFC, in a few days. His father, Gordon McClelland, heads a group of radio stations.

"Fifty per cent of the American fighting men in Viet Nam are under 20," explained young McClelland. "And I think it is perfectly normal that many of these teenagers are scared when they are confronted by older correspondents. But, with me, they'll see a guy of their own age and know I'm no smarter than they are — and they'll talk to me freely. At least, that's what I hope."

Young McClelland convinced his father of his serious intentions by preparing a long list of searching questions which he hopes to ask young fighting men — about their emotional involvement in the conflict, their opinion of their training and seeking evaluation of their own ability, as young people, to make decisions on which their lives may depend.

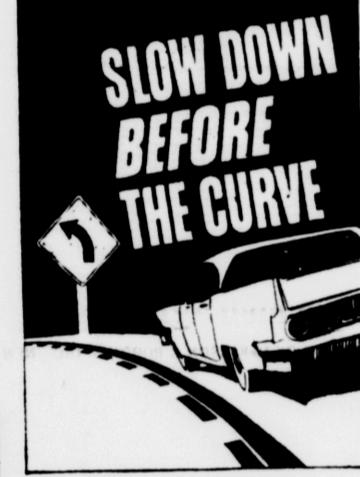

Network Television Mix Lean

BY CYNTHIA LOWRY
NEW YORK AP-- The program mix of network television begins to get a bit lean with the arrival of spring.

"Tammy," "The Loner" and "The Trials of O'Brien" have already slipped quietly into reruns and only three special programs are scheduled during the next seven days.

On Sunday night there is another in NBC's "Of Men and Freedom" series, this a study of Europe's religious reformation of the 16th Century — the time of Luther, Calvin and Ignatius of Loyola 5:30-6:30.

The big entertainment event is Tuesday night's "Carol Plus Two" on CBS 7:30-8:30 with Carol Burnett frolicking with Lucille Ball and Zero Mostel, a Broadway comedy star.

When I Was A Boy

As compiled by Ralph Gregory, Curator of the Mark Twain Shrine, Florida, from the writings of the founder of the Appeal, B.F. "Pappy" Blanton, in 1919-20. A contemporary of Mark Twain, "Pappy" Blanton wrote of the times and customs that were so dear to Twain, and about which Twain wrote so many interesting and humorous anecdotes.

(Verbatim copy, with some questions and guesses as to missing words)

B.F. "Pappy" Blanton

November 28, 1919
When I was a boy we had never heard of Halloween and knew absolutely nothing about the pranks that boys play nowadays on Halloween eve; but we did know about Christmas eve and how to play all sorts of pranks and do all sorts of devilment, and generally did enough of it too. Sometimes on Christmas eve the boys went serenading, but their main instrument was their mouth, and the singing they did was enough to run all the animals out of the neighborhood. Another diversion was to build a big stake and ridered fence across the road, but the ones that elicited the most joy was to hoist a wagon onto the top of a barn, or put a calf or colt up in the barn loft. That took lots of work, but like the Halloween funsters, we thought it was great fun.

When I was a boy no store in the country had mattresses or springs for beds to sell, and did not for a long time afterwards. Instead of a bed having springs as we now have, the bedsteads were corded with a long rope that was crossed and recrossed. It was a pretty good substitute for a spring mattress, too. In place of a mattress, everybody slept on a bed tick filled with good clean straw, which was emptied out and the straw tick refilled very frequently. But now these old time relics of the past have gone, and people now rest their bodies on a fine bed spring, on top of which is a good cotton mattress. But we do not sleep any better than we did on the straw.

When I was a boy prairie and forest fires were very common and frequent, and they sometimes did a great amount of damage. The grass on the prairies grew eight to ten feet high and was thick on the ground and in the late fall when it was dry it would burn like tinder. It was an awe inspiring sight to see a great prairie fire when the wind was blowing strong. For miles you could see the flames running along the ground as fast as a horse could run, and in an early day many deer and wolves perished in the flames. In the timber fire sometimes did great damage, but not so much as a fire on the prairies, which often burned up everything on a farm. Such sights will never again be seen in Missouri.

When I was a boy bees were plentiful in our county, and if a farmer did not keep bees he could usually get all the honey he wanted by finding and cutting a bee tree, and that was easily done, as they were plentiful. I remember a sad thing that occurred in our county in which bees played the chief part. A man returned from church one hot Sunday and turned his horse loose in the yard. Somehow the horse knocked a bee gum over, and the man went out and set it up, and as he did so the bees fairly swarmed on him and stung him to death. They filled his nose, ears, mouth and got down his collar. He lived but a few minutes. His death created a sensation. I believe his name was Charles Garry.

The Beach Boys were growing up," recalls Brian Wilson, spokesman and musical mentor of the Beach Boys. "Our dad was a song writer who had a number recorded by Lawrence Welk and did all right with some other songs. We were always singing and playing guitars."

One thing led to another, and the Beach Boys expect to be earning a total of $2 million in 1966.

Brian arrived for a chat about the group's phenomenal success. He is a serious chap of 23 years, tallish, overweight, with a rebellious mop of brown hair that is not as kempt as the Beatles'.

His seriousness was partly due to the fact that he has been in the process of creating the Beach Boys' magnum opus, a new album called "Pet Sounds."

It has already been 4 1/2 months in the making and isn't finished yet.

"This will be a new plateau for us," said Brian. "It will be the most carefully produced album ever made, and I want each number to be absolutely the best. That's why it has taken so long."

The Beach Boys rode the crest of the surfing craze that struck the nation's teen-agers a few years back. Actually, only Dennis Wilson was a bona fide surfer, but the boys presented a fresh, California-style appearance that caught the youthful

Friendship of Churchill, Truman Exhibit Subject

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., AP -- The friendship between Prime Minister Winston Churchill and former President Harry S. Truman is the subject of a new exhibit at the Harry S. Truman Library here.

The presentation, marking the 20th anniversary of Churchill's "iron curtain" speech at Fulton, Mo., features personal and official messages between the two men, books, photographs, Christmas cards, sculpture and other objects.

Visitors can hear a taped excerpt from Churchill's speech at Westminster College, March 5, 1946, and at the same time see displayed an autographed copy of the speech and the official White House shorthand reporter's notes showing the departure of the British prime minister made from his prepared text.

Exhibited for the first time is the original letter inviting Churchill to Westminster. Dr. Frank L. McClure, then president of the college, wrote the letter Oct. 3, 1945. He called at the White House, carrying the letter to Churchill. President Truman penned a footnote to the letter saying if Churchill would come, he would introduce him.

The letter was borrowed from the Churchill estate in England for the exhibit.

The exhibit will be on display through next summer.

"We had a lot of musical get-togethers when we were growing up," recalls Brian Wilson, spokesman and musical mentor of the Beach Boys. "Our dad was a song writer who had a number recorded by Lawrence Welk and did all right with some other songs. We were always singing and playing guitars."

Bonds Attract Buyers

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK -- Bargain hunters and fugitives from the stock market are coming to the aid of the hard-hammered bonds. Prices of bonds-U.S. Treasuries, corporates or tax-exempt municipals-have fallen so low and yields have thus risen so high that investors in recent days have been coming into the market as buyers.

Yields on outstanding securities have been pushed so high, however, that new issues are forced to carry interest rates higher than have been seen for 30 years.

Dealers in bonds say guardedly that renewed interest in them of late may be fashioning a floor under the prices. They trace the increased buying of these securities to their rising yields, and more idle money now in the hands of investors who have sold common stock heavily of late.

Prices of some U.S. Treasury long-term bonds have fallen to the point when one bought at today's quotation yields 5 per cent or better on the dollars invested, even though the interest rate of less than 4 per cent, of course, stays fixed. And at maturity the Treasury will redeem the bond at face value of $1,000, although today's going price may be only $940.

In the case of many corporate bonds the price drop has been more pronounced. Available yields have risen well above 5 per cent. For example, a leading utility's $1,000 bond maturing in 1983 bears the fixed interest rate of 3 1/2 per cent. But its market price has fallen to $800, making the return more than 5 1/4 per cent.

In the tax-exempt field, the general rise in interest rates from savings accounts to bank loans to mortgages-has caused a like price decline.

Commercial banks, which own about one-third of all municipals, have been selling some of their holdings to get funds to meet the demand for loans. Interest on these loans has risen so high that they yield the bank far more than did the municipal bonds, even taking into account the tax free angle.

Offerings of new corporate and tax-exempt issues are heavy now. As the demand for funds, grows, the offerings are expected to increase.

Hopwood Only Examiner Of Pilots in Large Area

MALDEN -- Glen E. Hopwood of Malden has been appointed pilot examiner in the Southeast Missouri area for private and commercial pilots by the Federal Aviation Agency in St. Louis.

He is the only Federal Inspector between Memphis, Tenn., and Cape Girardeau.

As a pilot examiner, Hopwood will represent the FAA in various capacities including the testing of applicants for pilot certificates. In this capacity he will evaluate applicants through oral examination and flight testing, including flight maneuvers, cross-country flying and orientation by use of flight instruments. Hopwood passed the oral and flight test given by the supervising inspector in the St. Louis office of FAA on Tuesday, March 1.

"Hoppy," as he is well known throughout the Bootheel Area, was born in the vicinity of Springfield, Ill., and received his elementary education in the Springfield School System. In 1943, three days after he graduated from Doniphan High School, Doniphan, Mo., Glen enlisted in the Army Air Corps where he was taught aircraft maintenance and aircraft engineering. He later served as flight engineer on a B-29, spending one year in the South Pacific.

After receiving his discharge from the service in 1946, Hopwood attended the Currey School of Aeronautics, Galesburg, Ill., where he obtained his aircraft and engine mechanics license, along with his commercial pilots license with instructors rating. Since that time he has increased his ratings to multi-engine, instrument and instrument instructors rating, and ground instructors rating.

Upon completion of his training at Currey, Glen accepted employment at Robinson Flying Service in Sikeston where he taught flying, flew chartered planes, and did crop dusting. He accepted a similar job at Rossville, Ga., in January of 1950 where he stayed until November of 1950. Hopwood did agricultural flying (crop dusting) in Kansas, Iowa and Minnesota in the spring of 1951 and went to work for Anderson Air Activities in the fall of 1951 as an aircraft engineering instructor. After teaching in the ground school for eight months, Glen was assigned to the flight line as a flight instructor. He later was promoted to assistant flight commander and also served as a civilian check pilot.

Since 1952 Hopwood has been associated with the SeMo Aviation, Inc., which was organized as one of the Bootheel's first crop dusting facilities. He now owns and operates the business which offers complete agricultural aviation, instruction, charter and air-ambulance services.

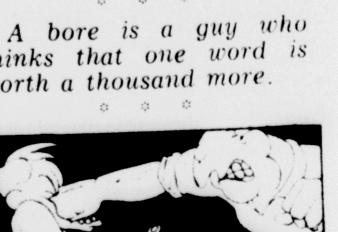

Come one come all.

His measure as a man depends on your measure as a parent!

How can you add to your measure? Going to worship is the simple act of faith that makes man and boy just a little taller.

In our complex and often trying world, faith offers its own answers to the problems that weigh on you. Next time you say to yourself, "But what can I do?" about the "unsolvable" difficulties of today, remember that peace in the world starts with peace in you.

Go to worship, take your family to church or synagogue with you, this week. Your faith reaffirms the sacredness of Man and Life. And a better world starts with this very idea!

50 Blue Bird Houses Are Put Up

PORTEGEVILLE -- Under the supervision of three Garden club members, Mrs. Hilton Bracey, Mrs. James Grable and Mrs. Tom Barnes, the Boy Scouts put up 50 Blue Bird houses in both the City Park and the Roadside Park as well as in residential areas, Saturday.

The Blue Bird builds its nests low and for this reason they do not build open nests in trees like most other types of birds, instead they prefer a hollowed out tree or this type of especially designed bird house which the Boy Scouts have built from an official plan under the guidance of their leader, Robert Hinton. These houses have enough room from the hole in the boxes down to where the nest will be for protection for their young from cats and other animals. Also the hole is designed to size to keep out many other types of birds.

So the Blue Bird Trail will be a project for Mr. and Mrs. Portageville Citizen to enjoy as well as take a real interest in. The Girl Scouts will earn their badges with the project they have undertaken and that is to help feed the birds in the winter months.

Surplus Foods To Be Given

HAYTI -- Judge A. P. Kersey, Jr., presiding judge of the county court, advises that surplus commodities will be given out beginning Monday. The schedule is as follows:

Monday -- McCarty, Reynolds Gln, Holland, and Hermondale.

Tuesday -- Cootier, Braggadocio, Pascola, Netherlands and Rowland Gln.

Wednesday -- Caruthersville.

Thursday -- Hayti.

Friday -- Steele, Bragg City, and Wardell.

Harold S. Jones, County Clerk, advises that each applicant must bring a container for commodities. The Commodity Building is at the American Legion Fairgrounds in Caruthersville. Only those that have signed up and have been certified may receive commodities. Each applicant must bring his re-certification blank when he comes for commodities.

Burglars Strike Second Time

HAYTI -- For the second time in less than a year, burglars struck at the new Trekker Chemical Company in Hayti, taking several office machines and a large quantity of agricultural chemicals.

The Hayti Liquid Fertilizer Company was also hit by burglars or vandals, who removed the valves from tanks containing phosphoric acid and allowed 9,000 gallons to drain out on the ground. This loss was estimated at $5,000.

The police, state highway patrol and the sheriff's office are investigating the burglary and vandalism, which took place Saturday night or early Sunday morning.

At the Trekker Chemical Company, east of Hayti, on a gravel road, entry was gained by forcing the front door with a crow bar. The burglars then loaded over $3,000 worth of equipment and chemicals on a truck at the back loading dock. Taken were an electric Smith-Corona typewriter, an electric calculator and a quantity of 5-gallon drums of Treflan and other types of fertilizer and weed control products.

In April of 1965, Trekker Chemical Company was burglarized and several new office machines and a new air conditioner were stolen. No trace of the equipment was ever found.

If you tell all you know, then the other guy knows as much as you do.

The Northside Church of Christ met for the first time on March 5, 1961. Mr. L. A. Hatley was the minister at that time and remained with the local congregation until June of 1962. The congregation met in the local Odd Fellows Hall until March 31, 1963.

At the first meeting there were 108 present. During the first year of their work this group purchased a four acre tract on highway 61 North. After talking extensively with contractors, Paden Construction Company was selected to construct a building. Upon making this agreement, a $60,000 bond issue was sold to finance construction. Construction was begun in November of 1962. The congregation met in its new facilities for the first time on March 31, 1963. A formal 'Open House' was held on May 31, with a great host of individuals from this community attending.

During the five years of its existence, a number of important events have transpired. Of most importance is the fine number who have been baptized into Christ. As with these, we have rejoiced at the return of several to a more faithful and dedicated life of service to the Lord. We feel that the number brought to the Lord is the greatest index of the work we are accomplishing.

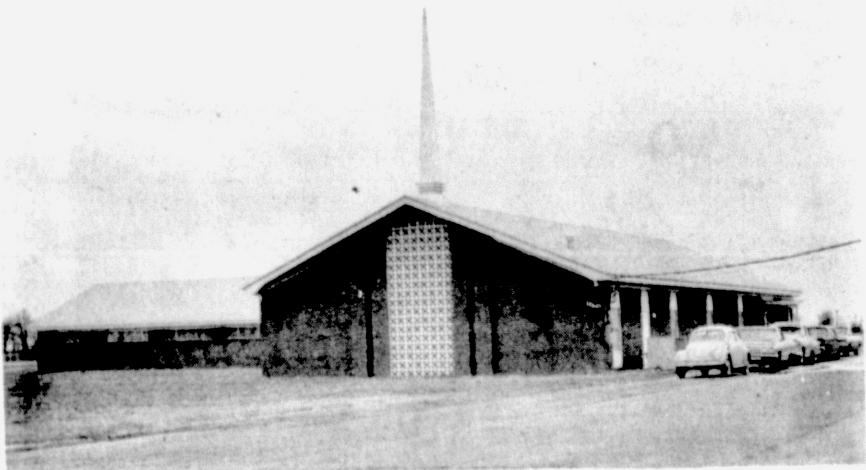

A short while after the first services were conducted in the new building, W. P. Jolley came to conduct the first Gospel Meeting. Since the first series, Mike Sinapiades and Campbell Pullias have conducted similar evangelistic efforts. There was a tremendous crowd present at one of these gatherings totaling 446.

Come let us go into

Of great value to the congregation and the community, a Vacation Bible School has been conducted each year since 1963. The one conducted during 1965 had a 193 average daily attendance. The key to such growth in these educational endeavors has been a dedicated group of Bible class teachers. A teacher training program was conducted in 1965 to further inspire the workers.

The 1966 plans of the congregation call for an expansion of teaching the Word of God in this community and in mission areas. With an interest in contributing to the welfare of mankind, the individuals of this assembly of Christians have dedicated themselves to directing the attention of all to the Life and Teachings of Jesus Christ.

Beginning March 20 and continuing through March 27, Thomas E. Scott will be the speaker in a series of evangelistic services. All are invited to come and hear a very capable man proclaim the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

On July 15, 1962, Jimmy Miller came to serve as minister with this congregation. He extends a welcome to all to come and worship with this group of Christian people.

Medicine Will Have Exacting Role in Battle on Poverty

EDITOR'S NOTE -- U.S. medicine will have an exacting role to perform in the "war on poverty." Vast needs are seen among the millions of poor and old in big city slums and many rural areas. This is the fourth of five articles on American medicine today.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
NEW YORK AP -- "It's simply shocking," said a pediatrician in a large Eastern city.

"You wonder if some way can't be found to give these kids a better medical break."

"These kids" were 1,442 youngsters, mostly from poor families, enrolled in a Head Start program to prepare them better for entering schools.

One-third of them, medical examiners found, had some major medical defect, or emotional problem -- or both.

That is one measure of the health needs, mostly unmet, among millions of poor people in big cities and many rural areas, needs unmet despite hospital clinics and physicians' donated time.

Various reasons are suggested for the neglect:

That people don't know facilities exist, that there aren't enough facilities, that some people can't find baby-sitters or take time from their jobs, that clinics and services are too fragmented and patients are shunted from place to place, that many have no medical or hospital insurance systems.

But when, and if, the sluices gates open to meet their needs, the nation's medical system will be challenged more than ever.

Medicine will bring part of this new testing, since many elderly persons living on limited incomes will be offered hospitalization under Social Security payments. They may also sign up, at low fees, for medical services.

Looking to July 1, when medicare begins, hospitals in some cities expect a heavy demand for beds and services. Others anticipate only a slight increase, mainly because many beds already are occupied by patients over 65.

More demand for medical services will come.

For Title XIX of the medicare law calls upon states vastly to expand their programs of health care for all the needy and medically needy in each state, by

July 1975, if they are to continue receiving federal money.

Poor health is one root, one anchor, in a vicious cycle of poverty -- without intervention, the poor gets sicker and the sick get poorer," says Dr. N. Jack Geiger of Tufts University Medical School in Boston.

He and Dr. Count D. Gibson Jr., professor of preventive medicine at Tufts, are originators of a novel approach to improve the health of the poor, a program containing seeds for increasing health manpower jobs among the poor themselves.

Sponsored by the medical school, with an initial grant of $1,168,000 in poverty program funds, the program is setting up two community health centers, one in Boston, another to come in a rural Southern area.

The Boston center, at the Columbia Point housing development, is operating. In its first four weeks, 600 children and adults in the housing development came for diagnosis and treatment.

Tufts supplies the small staff of physicians on duty at the health center. The doctors may refer patients to city hospitals or to specialists, as needed.

This health program is one pilot attempt--aided by a computerized system of keeping records--to determine the real need for health services, what they cost in time, services and money to meet them, Dr. Geiger explains. It may point the way to similar centers in other areas.

There are 6,000 families in the housing project, and one-third of them are enrolling in voluntary health association which helped plan the health center itself. But anyone in the housing project can utilize the health center. No one is charged for visits. Prevention of illness is emphasized.

But when, and if, the sluices gates open to meet their needs, the nation's medical system will be challenged more than ever.

Once Fiery Labor Chiefs Are Aging

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) -- To the new generations it won't be long before the agony of American labor and the turmoil, often between labor and industry seems as remote as covered wagons and Wyatt Earp.

Some of the giants of American labor in the 20th century already have passed into history, dying at a time when labor-management relations had become almost serene compared with the past.

Time has taken its toll of others, still alive. Getting too old for the burdens of leadership, they have stepped aside.

John L. Lewis, with brows so bushy they made his eyes look like caverns, could snarl like a cat, roar like a lion, invent the sit-down strike, defy the government, and plague the coalmine owners.

In the end he got along fine with them. He recognized the inevitability of labor-saving machinery in the coal mines, and when West Virginia University awarded him an honorary degree of doctor of laws in 1957 he was described as "the foremost labor statesman in the world."

Medicine Will Have Exacting Role in Battle on Poverty

EDITOR'S NOTE -- U. S. medicine will have an exacting role to perform in the "war on poverty." Vast needs are seen among the millions of poor and old in big city slums and many rural areas. This is the fourth of five articles on American medicine today.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
NEW YORK AP -- "It's simply shocking," said a pediatrician in a large Eastern city.

"You wonder if some way can't be found to give these kids a better medical break."

"These kids" were 1,442 youngsters, mostly from poor families, enrolled in a Head Start program to prepare them better for entering schools.

One-third of them, medical examiners found, had some major medical defect, or emotional problem -- or both.

That is one measure of the health needs, mostly unmet, among millions of poor people in big cities and many rural areas, needs unmet despite hospital clinics and physicians' do-not-treat time.

Various reasons are suggested for the neglect:

That people don't know facilities exist, that there aren't enough facilities, that some people can't find babysitters or take time from their jobs, that clinics and services are too fragmented and patients are shunted from place to place, that many have no medical or hospital insurance systems.

The charge is even made that "many poor people just don't care."

But when, and if, the sluices gates open to meet their needs, the nation's medical system will be challenged more than ever.

Medicare will bring part of this new testing, since many elderly persons living on limited incomes will be offered hospitalization under Social Security payments. They may also sign up, at low fees, for medical services.

Looking to July 1, when medical care begins, hospitals in some cities expect a heavy demand for beds and services. Others anticipate only a slight increase, mainly because many beds already are occupied by patients over 65.

More demand for medical services will come.

For Title XIX of the medicare law calls upon states vastly to expand their programs of health care for all the need-and medically needy in each state, by

July 1975, if they are to continue receiving federal money.

Poor health is one root, one anchor, in a vicious cycle of poverty -- without intervention, the poor gets sicker and the sick get poorer," says Dr. N. Jack Geiger of Tufts University Medical School in Boston.

He and Dr. Count D. Gibson Jr., professor of preventive medicine at Tufts, are originators of a novel approach to improve the health of the poor, program containing seeds for increasing health manpower jobs among the poor themselves.

Sponsored by the medical school, with an initial grant of $1,168,000 in poverty program funds, the program is setting up two community health centers, one in Boston, another to come in a rural Southern area.

The Boston center, at the Columbia Point housing development, is operating. In its first four weeks, 600 children and adults in the housing development came for diagnosis and treatment.

Tufts supplies the small staff of physicians on duty at the health center. The doctors may refer patients to city hospitals or to specialists, as needed.

This health program is one pilot attempt aided by a computerized system of keeping records to determine the real need for health services, what they cost in time, services and money to meet them, Dr. Geiger explains. It may point the way to similar centers in other areas.

There are 6,000 families in the housing project, and one-third of them enrolled in a voluntary health association which helped plan the health center itself. But anyone in the housing project can utilize the health center. No one is charged for visits. Prevention of illness is emphasized.

More demand for medical services will come.

For Title XIX of the medicare law calls upon states vastly to expand their programs of health care for all the need-and medically needy in each state, by

Accident Not Cause Of Death

KENNEDY -- A Kennett man's death, originally counted as a highway fatality, has been attributed to a heart attack alone. Russell Burns, 52, died at Presnell Hospital there a short time after his car rammed another at a stop sign in Kennett on March 8.

A pathologist at the time said he died of a heart condition which was aggravated by the accident.

Dunklin County Coroner Quinton Tarver said that he was not immediately notified of the cause.

Tarver said as far as he was concerned the death should not be charged as a traffic fatality.

The Missouri Highway Patrol Headquarters in Jefferson City said the death certificate showed the cause of death was a heart attack.

Patrol officials said the death would not be counted as a road fatality.

Once Fiery Labor Chiefs Are Aging

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) -- To the new generations it won't be long before the agony of American labor and the turmoil, often bloody, between labor and industry seems as remote as the wagons and Wyatt Earp.

Some of the giants of American labor in the 20th century already have passed into history, dying at a time when labor-management relations had become almost serene compared with the past.

Time has taken its toll of others, still alive. Getting too old for the burdens of leadership, they have stepped aside.

John L. Lewis, with brows so bushy he made his eyes look like caverns, could snarl like a cat, roar like a lion, invent the sit-down strike, defy the government, and plague the coalmine owners.

In the end he got along fine with them. He recognized the inevitability of labor-saving machinery in the coal mines, and when West Virginia University awarded him an honorary degree of doctor of laws in 1957 he was described as "the foremost labor statesman in the world."

He had headed the United Mine Workers for 40 years, and in between times the Congress of Industrial Organizations. But time caught up with him and he began fading from the picture in the 1950s. Now he visits the UMW's headquarters here perhaps once a week. He's 86 now.

And this week another one of the giants, David Dubinsky, announced he will retire April 12 as president of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union which he has headed 34 years.

He is 74 and he wiped his eyes with a handkerchief as an assistant read the resignation.

When he took over the union in 1932 the garment workers were in a sweatshop industry.

Under him it became a wealthy union with excellent contracts that provided the first garment-industry agreement on a 35-hour week, an employer-contributed pooled fund for workers' vacations, health and welfare funds, retirement funds, and severance pay.

But already gone from the scene were such men as Philip Murray, William Green, Sidney Hillman.

Murray, head of the CIO, died 14 years ago at 66. Green headed the American Federation of Labor from 1924 until he died 14 years ago at 79. Hillman was not only extremely active in the labor movement as head of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers but was also active in serving the government during the war. He died 20 years ago at 59 after heading the clothing workers since 1915.

But what the younger generations of Americans are seeing is a rather placid labor movement with much of the steam out of it as new leaders, well-paid, sit on their hands and fail to organize the unorganized.

But also, labor has made such gains since the 1930s and has such power now to cripple the country, it has lost much of the sympathy it had when was strictly the underdog and the various managements acted as if the Middle Ages would never end.

Now when labor strikes, particularly in an industry directly affecting the public welfare, like transportation or steel, it has to watch its step lest Congress finally forbid such strikes and replace them with compulsory arbitration.

Legislature to make Maryland's law tougher.

"It's beyond belief what's going on in this business," he told lawmakers. He said New York's loss last year was an estimated $25 million in taxes on smuggled cigarettes. He said some of the cigarettes are sold in Maryland, resulting in more than $750,000 in lost tax revenue.

There is no cigarette tax in North Carolina. And Englebert said most of the traffic comes from there.

Frustrated tax agents, working with Maryland State Police, now must spot some small traffic violation or other excuse to stop vehicles suspected of carrying northbound smokes.

Recent examples include a faulty muffler, no light shining on a license plate, a windshield wiper check, and other minor excuses.

The law prevents searching a closed van unless tax authorities have a "good reason" for suspecting contraband.

Englebert described the illicit traffic as "worse than prostitution."

"The attitude today seems to be that a package of cigarettes is just a package of cigarettes," he said. "Who cares where it came from? But I tell you this is backed by organized crime — and it's getting bigger every day."

Englebert said North Carolina has no law to prevent such interstate traffic because there is no cigarette tax.

"They just don't care down there. Why should they? They manufacture most cigarettes; they make money; they don't care where they're going."

Conviction under present Maryland law could mean fine of $25 for each carton and up to five years of imprisonment for maximum sentence. But jurists have been reluctant to go this far. The law prohibits carrying more than one carton through the state or more than two packages into the state by a resident.

be seen with them. Furthermore, they are dull. I am fed up trying to make small talk with dumbbells while the men discuss business.

Do you feel it would hurt my husband's chances for advancement if I refused to go along on these dates? ---- EMM ARR

Dear Emm Arr: If your husband's success hinges on your keeping the boss' bimbos company, he's not as bright and promising as you think. Make your position clear and stick to it.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a girl who will soon be 16 years old.

I have been taking trumpet lessons for six years and I play very well. I enjoy playing in the school band but something is going on that is taking all of the fun out of it. Need your advice.

A certain girl in the band who has only been taking trumpet lessons for two years has been getting all the solo passages that used to go to me. This is her first year in band and, please take my word for it, she plays a very mediocre trumpet.

She gets the solo passages now because she wears sweaters that are two sizes too small to begin with and then she shrinks them in hot water. The band leader likes that a lot.

I want to tell the principal what is going on. Believe me, Ann Landers. I am no trouble maker. I just want to get what's coming to me. What is your advice? --- RESENTFUL

Dear Resentful: My advice is to keep quiet. If you go to the principal with that story you'll get what's coming to you, all right.

I can't imagine a place where a tight sweater counts less, and ability counts more, than in a band. Keep practicing and one of these days you may get the solo passages again.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a widow 46, self-supporting, with two grown sons. Three years ago I started to go with a very nice man I met through my employer. Bryce is 50 and has never married. He makes his home with his parents who are in their 70's. I have never met his parents because they are opposed to our relationship. They say Bryce should marry a woman who can give him a family.

I think it's time we got married or called it quits. I do not go with anyone else because he has asked me not to. Last night Bryce said if I loved him I would wait until his parents died. They are both in poor health. What do you say? --- MRS.?????

Dear Mrs.????: Bryce's suggestion that you wait around for his parents to die is an insult -- not a proposal. Moreover, it's one of the oldest insults of all. Wake up, woman.

12 Truckers In Area Fail To Comply

JEFFERSON CITY -- The Public Service Commission has issued two separate orders citing 227 intrastate motor carriers and contract carriers to appear before the commission for failure to comply with requirements. Twelve are in Southeast Missouri.

"Some of these motor carriers have been delinquent for entirely too long," commented William R. Clark, PSC chairman. "Some violations go back to 1959, 1960 and 1961. The commission is issuing this blanket order to clean house on the truck files."

Violations include failure to keep proper insurance on file; failure to have a proper schedule of rates and charges on file at the PSC and failure to file annual reports.

"In some cases," continued the PSC chairman, "the carrier is delinquent on one count, but in others the carrier has neglected to fulfill two or more of the PSC requirements."

The chairman added that upon receipt of the Commission's orders, a number of the 227 will probably comply with the law immediately. A few of the carriers listed are general commodity or property carriers. Others are transporters of household goods, livestock, feed, fertilizer and commodities in bulk in dump trucks.

"Many of the carriers have held PSC authority for a considerable length of time. They are aware of the Commission's requirements," said Judge Clark. "Carriers who do not meet PSC requirements will be faced with cancellation of authority. For sake of simplicity, we have divided the list using 117 on one order and 110 on another. Carriers made the selection."

The award is made annually in recognition of the selected units "outstanding achievement in the overall maintenance, supply, logistics, transportation and procurement areas." It was named in honor of the late Colonel Charles D. Trail who, according to SAC, "had a long period of exemplary service with the command."

The objectives of the award are to enhance the competitive spirit of eligible units, promote better management practices in materiel areas and to publicly recognize worthy and outstanding achievements.

The trophy has become the permanent possession of the 97th Bomb Wing. It is inscribed: "Charles D. Trail Materiel Award for Outstanding Achievement in Materiel, 1965, Presented to the 97th Bombardment Wing, Heavy, USAF."

Colonel John W. Livingston, 97th Bomb Wing commander, said of the nomination, "It is a great honor which is well deserved by the personnel of this wing's materiel function."

Today In U.S. History

Today is Friday, March 18, the 77th day of 1966. There are 288 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1818, Congress passed the first pension act for veterans.

On this date

In 1837, the 22nd president of the United States — Grover Cleveland — was born in New Jersey.

In 1919, New Jersey rejected the 18th, or Prohibition, Amendment.

In 1937, a gas explosion destroyed a school in New London, Tex., killing 455 pupils and teachers.

In 1940, Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini conferred at the Brenner Pass.

In 1959, President Eisenhower signed legislation admitting Hawaii as the 50th state.

Ten years ago — The British governor of Cyprus said there would be no move to reopen negotiations on the question of self-government until Greek Cypriot terrorism was crushed.

Five years ago — Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Russian Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko met in Washington for the first top level American-Russian diplomatic meeting of the Kennedy administration.

One year ago — Russia launched its spaceship with two cosmonauts aboard. They stayed up seven days and one of them took man's first walk in space.

Educators Will Gather in Cape

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and the St. Louis White House Conference group are co-sponsoring a study of the organization, structure and financing of education in Missouri from kindergarten through junior college.

The study is being conducted by the Academy for Education Development, Inc.

In order to achieve as completed coverage as possible, a study team has planned a series of regional meetings throughout the state. Such a meeting is planned for April 12 and 13 at Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau.

On April 12, school superintendents will meet at 10 a.m., school board members will meet at 2 p.m., and the public meeting will be at 8 p.m.

On April 13, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. additional meetings with individuals and small groups are planned.

St. Francis Shortening

Project Will Begin in May

KENNEDY -- The St. Francis River will be shortened 17 miles by a cut-off to be made near Wilhelmina, making it possible for floodwaters to run off more rapidly, Col. James A. Vivian, District Engineer at Memphis, Tenn., has announced.

A contract for excavation of the cut-off was awarded to William Crumpecker & Sons Co. of Morehouse, for $443,000. Clearing the work site could begin in May, depending upon working conditions, Colonel Vivian said, and the contractor will be allowed 420 calendar days to finish the job, with completion probable in late 1967.

The Wilhelmina cutoff is a part of Item 1 of work to be done between Wappapello and Crowley's Ridge. Located in Dunklin County, the cut-off's upper end will begin about two miles north of Wilhelmina. The excavation will then run a southeasterly direction for about 3 1/2 miles to join Dunklin County Ditch No. 12 about one mile east of Wilhelmina, just north of Missouri Highway "D".

From this point it will re-enter the St. Francis River through the enlarged channel of Ditch No. 12. The main channel of the St. Francis will be improved below the cut-off to a point below the Clay County, Ark., line.

At the request of the Fish and Wildlife Service, the project includes a provision that the cut-off loop of the old channel be plugged with earth-fill dams to furnish habitat for fish and wildlife, provided that local interests furnish assurances that they will develop, provide for public access, operate, and maintain the fish and wildlife features after construction.

In discussing the work, Col. Vivian said that it was authorized by the Flood Control Act of 1936 as amended as a modification to the St. Francis River Basin Project which is itself a part of the over-all plan for flood control on the Lower Mississippi River and its tributaries.

Other work to be done in this vicinity under the same congressional act includes clearing and removing drift from the St. Francis River channel between Wappapello and Fisk, improvement and enlargement of the St. Francis River channel from Fisk to Wilhelmina, improvement of the lower 13.3 miles of Mingo Ditch, improvement of 6.5 miles of Dudley Ditch and 2.8 miles of Lick Creek, improvement of 7.3 miles of Ditch No. 12, and an extension downstream of the Varney River sleeve-levee inlet. This work will be advertised for bid as rapidly as rights of way are made available, funds are appropriated, and engineering capability permits.

All of the work is designed to relieve flooding in the area below Wappapello by increasing the capacity of the St. Francis River channel from its present carrying capacity of about 3,000 cubic feet per second to about 7,000 cubic feet per second from the dam to Fisk, and to about 17,000 cubic feet per second at the lower end of the Wilhelmina cut-off.

COL. STEVE CANYON IS TWO-FACED

-BUT IT'S IN THE LINE OF DUTY!

There's danger in Col. Steve Canyon's new assignment -- naturally. But it does have redeeming features.

Steve is being sent to Hanoi to rescue a C.I.A. agent on whom the Viet Cong Secret Police are closing in. He grows a beard, dyes it and his hair black and assumes the identity of Liffy Muldoon, an Irish adventurer who is serving a long term in a U.S. prison.

Steve's orders are to pose as the husband of the C.I.A. agent, lovely Espree Muldoon--

--and that kind of duty is not hard to take. Espree, whom Steve had met on a special mission to Hanoi during the Korean crisis, is French by birth, but has a Republic of Fire passport because of her marriage to Liffy.

Will Steve be able to fool the wily Viet Cong Secret Police?

You will find out in the new adventure story coming up in STEVE CANYON by Milton Caniff Starting Monday, March 21 in the Daily Standard

The Wilhelmina cutoff is a part of Item I of work to be done between Wappapello and Crowley's Ridge. Located in Dunklin County, the cut-off's upper end will begin about two miles north of Wilhelmina. The excavation will then run in a southeasterly direction for about 3 1/2 miles to join Dunklin County Ditch No. 12 about one mile east of Wilhelmina, just north of Missouri Highway 101.

From this point it will re-enter the St. Francis River through the enlarged channel of Ditch No. 12. The main channel of the St. Francis will be improved below the cut-off to a point below the Clay County, Ark., line.

At the request of the Fish and Wildlife Service, the project includes a provision that the cut-off loop of the old channel be plugged with earth-filled dams to furnish habitat for fish and wildlife, provided that local interests furnish assurances that they will develop, provide for public access, operate, and maintain the fish and wildlife features after construction.

In discussing the work, Col. Vivian said that it was authorized by the Flood Control Act of 1936 as amended as a modification to the St. Francis River Basin Project which is itself a part of the over-all plan for flood control on the Lower Mississippi River and its tributaries.

Other work to be done in this vicinity under the same congressional act includes clearing and removing drift from the St. Francis River channel between Wappapello and Fisk, improvement and enlargement of the St. Francis River channel from Fisk to Wilhelmina, improvement of the lower 13.3 miles of Mingo Ditch, improvement of 6.5 miles of Dudley Ditch and 2.8 miles of Lick Creek, improvement of 7.3 miles of Ditch No. 12, and an extension downstream of the Varney River sleeve-leveed inlet. This work will be advertised for bid as rapidly as rights of way are made available, funds are appropriated, and engineering capability permits.

All of the work is designed to relieve flooding in the area below Wappapello by increasing the capacity of the St. Francis River channel from its present carrying capacity of about 3,000 cubic feet per second to about 7,000 cubic feet per second; fully steady, 25 higher on 400-500 lbs.; 190-260 lbs. barrows and gulls 25-25-50; 325-450 lbs. sows 20,50-22.5.

Cattle 200; calves 50; cows steady in a cleanup trade; insufficient offerings of other classes to test price trends; cows 16.00-20.00; vealers steady; good to choice vealers 28.00-38.00; few high good and choice calves 24.00-26.00. Sheep 25; not enough to establish price trends.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, III. AP -- Estimated receipts for Monday: hogs 8,000; cattle 5,000; calves 150; sheep 500. Hogs 5,000; barrows and gulls under 230 lbs. 25-50 higher; over 230 lbs. steady to 50 higher; later steady to 25 higher; sows fully steady, 25 higher on 400-500 lbs.; 190-260 lbs. barrows and gulls 25-25-50; 325-450 lbs. sows 20,50-22.5.

COL. STEVE CANYON IS TWO-FACED

-BUT IT'S IN THE LINE OF DUTY!

There's danger in Col. Steve Canyon's new assignment -- naturally. But it does have redeeming features.

Steve is being sent to Hanoi to rescue a C.I.A. agent on whom the Viet Cong Secret Police are closing in. He grows a beard, dyes it and his hair black and assumes the identity of Liffy Muldoon, an Irish adventurer who is serving a long term in a U.S. prison.

Steve's orders are to pose as the husband of the C.I.A. agent, lovely Esprey Muldoon--

--and that kind of duty is not hard to take. Esprey, whom Steve had met on a special mission to Hanoi during the Korean crisis, is French by birth, but has a Republic of Eire passport because of her marriage to Liffy.

Will Steve be able to fool the wily Viet Cong Secret Police? You will find out in the new adventure story coming up in STEVE CANYON by Milton Caniff Starting Monday, March 21 in the Daily Standard Days are longer now and sunnier. It's time for wide-awake gardeners to sow seeds of slow-growing annuals like the gorgeous double-flowered petunias and the useful ageratum. These seeds should be started in your sunniest window; the container set close to the glass.
